The program is in French and English. Both languages are necessary to follow ISAC and ArBA-EsA courses.

ISAC is dedicated to choreography, performance making and dance at the junction between choreographic arts and visual arts.

With the aim to offer a research frame to artists, it explores body and dance practices as a primary medium. Its pedagogical approach enables students to investigate the term 'choreography' in a multiple and ever-expanding sense, as a tool and as an experiment for contributing in re-thinking and shaping the present.

Espace urbain/ISAC encourages everyone to apply without regard to linguistic, religious or cultural origin, socio-economic status, nationality or citizenship status, color, culture, gender, gender identity, different abilities or age.
